

NJ "Do Not Call" law has afforded me some peace in the confines of my own home. I found it invasive and more than an inconvenience that telemarketers were able to obtain / call my home when I had made conscious efforts to keep my number unlisted, unpublished, etc. The FCC should be seeking to raise the federal regulation to the NJ standard rather than weakening one of the most effective pieces of legislation passed in my lifetime.